He went to Moscow immediately on receipt of the news of the assessination of Grand Duke Sergius.

Fer Repetition of Moscow Tragedy.
So grave is the danger of a repetition of the Moscow tragedy that several of the Grand Dukes have not stirred out of their palaces since the murder, and instead of going to Transition-Solo to attend the requiem there, they have participated in special services held in the chapic of their own palaces. This was the case as regards Grand Dukes Vladinity and Alexis. A special requiem also we had in the Winter palace, that Gov.-Sen. Trepoff might attend. Gen. Trepoff said to be under sentence by the fighting organization of the social revolutionates and so far as can be ascertained has at left his quarters since the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius. Dispatches from the Interior say that requiems for the Grand Duke have been held throughest Burstin.

What the Employers Say.

The employers in a letter to Finance Minister Kokevsoff squarely disclaim all responsibility for settling the labor trouble, declaring that the strike is not of economic origin and that the nature of the men's grievances can only be adjusted by political reforms. They claim that the condition of industry in Russia renders yielding to the demands of the men utterly impossible.

Newspapers Suppressed.

Newspapers Suppressed.

The suspension for three months of the newspapers Our Life and Our Days, following a second warning, is probably equivalent to the final extinction of the offending journals. The decree of suspension assigns a "dangerous tendency" to the publications and specifies several articles upon popular manifestations but the owners of the papers believe that the true reason is that no expression of sorrow for the murder of Grand Duke Sergius was printed in their Moscow dispatches and that there was no word of editorial comment. Perhaps the best explanation is the fact that both papers, which circulate largely among the workmen, have printed articles bitterly opposed to the Government.

The windows of the Palace of Justice have been reglazed. and other hasty efforts have been made and other hasty efforts have been made to obliterate traces of Friday's tragedy. Evidence, however, is being found in most unexpected places. Soldiers this afternoon discovered many pleces of the carriage in which Grand Duke Sergius was riding when he met his death, and fragments of flesh were found on the top of the twelve-foot parapet of the arsenal, among the Napoleonic guns.

Pass by the Bier.

Pass by the Bier.

Until the funeral, which has been fixed for Ehursday, February 23, the remains of Grand Duke Sergius will rest in the ancient dining-room of the monastery, to which, throughout the day, the people of Moscow have been admitted, to pay their last respects, in parties of one hundred. This precaution was taken because it was thought necessary to avoid the possibility of demonstrations. The body of the Grand Duke, dressed in the uniform of the Fifth (kieff) grenadiers, of which he was the honorary colonel, rests in an oaken coffin. Only the breast of the uniform, upon which is an inscription of the Saviour and the orders of the Grand Duke, is visible. The bible beside the head of the coffin bears the orthodox cross in silver and the Imperial engles. Pass by the Bier.

A short time ago he was driving a visitor around some of his ranches. They came to a bunch of fine-looking mules. "See those mules," said Hankin. Those are my Democratic mules." Why so?" asked the friend.

"Oh," Uncle Davy replied. "I bought them during Cleveland's last administration for $49 apiece and now they are worth $200 apiece." A little later they came to a ranch where the foremen was comviaining because he couldn't get men to work.

"Well," said Rankin. "you and me will have to noto the Democratic ticket. Bill."

"Why?" saked Bill.

"Because." Rankins replied. "In Democratic times there are always two men for every job."

This sort of thing kept up all day. On the way home at night the friend said.

"Now, see here, Uncle Davy, you have been pretty hard on the Democratic day. Don't you know that I'm a Democrat?" I'm glad of it. "Rankin replied. "It's a good thing for a man to be a Democrat when he's young. Then he won't expect so much when he's old."

"Down in my country the peach trees are probably blooming, the scent of the spring grass is in the air, and I suppose my children are going swimmin," Col. Bill Sterrett of Texas was saying today. He was interrupted by the arrival of a messenger, who handed him a telegram from a friend near his home that read:
"Wood familie in Texas; roads frozen upgarden truck all dead: breaking ice for cowsto get water, ink, whisky and molasses all frozen hard. Come home at once."
"Well I'll be blamed." Col. Sterrett said. "If I'd been in Texas all this would not have happened."

The Swayne trial was dragging along in the Senate when one of the managers for the House of Representatives asked a railroad man who was testifying.

"Do you not know of instances where Fei-rai officials have used railroad passes and then collected mileage from the Government?" This is a fine place to ask a question like that." said ex-Senator Thurston in a hears whisper, as he looked around the chamber.

WORK BEFORE SENATE.

Week Will Open With Motion Regarding Statehood Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb 19.-The Senate will begin the week with consideration of the motion to appoint conferces on the joint statehood bill. The general under-standing is that this motion will prevail standing is that this motion will prevail and that the bill will go to conference. In case the committee recedes from the important Senate amendments, a sharp contest probably will ensue. The Swayne impeachment trial will proceed Monday at 2 o'clock, and it is now anticipated that the termination of the proceeding will not be deferred for a great white. The prosecution will introduce only one or two more witnesses, and it is announced that the defense will not call a large number. The postoffice appropriation bill will be taken up early in the week, and this and other supply bills will be kept as well to the front as possible during the entire week.

Pitiful Story of Struggle Made by Lad to Support Fam-

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.-Abraham Kou dos, a fourteen-year-old boy, died in a small furnished room on the first floor at No. 84 Norfolk street today of starpitiful story. He tried hard to provide a living for his mother and baby brother by selling papers, but became III, and had to stop. Then, the neighbors say, an appeal was sent to a charity organization, but no reply was received.

The lad had been alling for a week, and last night his mother had to carry bim to his bed. When he lay down he said to his mother, who was crying bit-

Is dead.

Soon after his mother and baby brother went to bed. Early today Mrs. Koudes was awakened and she reached over to where the boy lay and tried to arouse him. All she received in reply was a groan. She aroused some of the tenants and they summoned Dr. Gooderman.

The neighbors treated the boy with home remedies, but he went into convulsions, and when Dr. Gooderman reached the house was dead. He said starvation caused the lad's death.
